Lately we're hearing all about how Chinese (and, by extension, Indonesian) culture are the next big thing. But there's no denying that Indonesian culture has a lot to offer too. Let's see which iconic Indonesian foods we can't find on Chinese menus, and whether you can make a trip to Indonesia and still eat like an Indonesian. The government may be looking at a budget deficit of Rp 100 trillion ($7.96 billion) this year, a four-year high, and the government will not want to increase fuel prices, so it is likely to cut energy subsidies, which currently account for about 35% of government expenditure. The government is considering a possible subsidy cut for electricity, or the provision of services to the people, but it is also preparing an economic stimulus package to avoid any social unrest. Indonesia is still a relatively young nation, with a population of more than 220 million people. We were founded by the Dutch in 1600 and since then Indonesia has had more than 600 years of history. We are an archipelagic country, made up of more than 17,000 islands and covered by a tropical climate. It is also one of the most ethnically diverse countries in the world, with more than 600 different languages and many hundreds of different ethnic groups and subgroups. Indonesia is the home of more than 17,000 islands and the capital city, Jakarta, is located on the island of Java.

We also have 40 other major islands. There is something to be said about being a country which boasts more than 17,000 islands. Our geographical diversity, tropical climate and vast islands make Indonesia an attractive destination for both domestic and foreign tourists. The tourist industry plays a very important role in the national economy. The number of visitors from within Indonesia has grown by 25% in the past year, and is expected to grow by another 10% this year. The tourist industry in Indonesia is highly diversified and, according to latest statistics, visitors from the European Union in 2011 comprised 16.9% of total tourist arrivals in Indonesia. By the end of 2011, tourists from Germany accounted for about 9.5% of total visitor arrivals in Indonesia. Indonesia's reputation as a paradise for travellers is largely due to the many national and regional attractions available. We have mountains, jungle, waterfalls, volcanoes, white sandy beaches, 82157476af
